MAY QUEEN RULES TEACHERS' FESTIVAL

Thousands of School Children and Their Friends Unite to Make the Celebration Exercises a Success---Picnics and Sports Held at Various Places in Commemoration of the Great Holiday.

fittingly observed yesterday by school children and patriots alike. Many stores were closed and business took a brief respite, while thousands of people left the city for out-of-door amusements of various kinds. Across the bay on the Marin and Alameda sides picnickers made the nost of their few hours' surcease from the cares of daily labor. All day the cars traveling to the outlying districts were packed with pleasure-seekers. At Glen Park a mammoth festival, at which there were between thirty and forty thousand attendants, proved the event of the day. It will long be remembered by the school teachers may well be proud of their suc-cessful efforts. The teachers' annuity fund, for which this festival was given as a benefit, will be swelled by many thou-$2100 were reported as sold up to 6 o'clock Monday evening and the gate receipts were over $700. When full reports are re-ceived the finance committee is of the least $7000.

Crowding the paths, the approaches and the booths these thousands of young people rushed to and fro until the night came on. At the lemonade and ice cream booths they swarmed around the counters. On the slopes and in the glen they were like bees in a hive. Of course they were full of the noise that goes with youth, and as it was essentially a day for children the teachers sheathed their rattans and closed their check books.

So well ordered and arranged was the celebration that no accidents of a serious nature occurred. The cars during the early hours of the morning were jammed with the merry-making and jubilant school children under the charge of mothers.

nature occurred. The cars during the early hours of the morning were jammed with the merry-making and jubilant school children under the charge of mothers and friends. Once on the grounds the fun began. The more adventurous young ones took to the high slopes, climbing the hills that overhang the glen, or chasing one another over every inch of ground within the fences. Three separate performances in the theater drew packed houses. The participants were all children of ages varying from 5 to 12, and they gave a show of cakewalks, fancy dancing and singing that won the audience body and soul.

The feature of the indoors celebration was the Maypole winding and the crowning of the queen. Jesse Eva Swift played the part of vouthful majesty and she played it well. To Raymon Landsberger fell the duty of investing the "Queen of the May" with royal headplece and the insignia of regai power. Phyllis Nicholson, Gladys Hendy, and Samuel Hendy acted as pages to her Majesty, carrying the long train of their queen for a day and dancing attendance with happy hearts.

supplied the music, which, if it were not of the quality that rouses the musican to enthusiasm, pleased the people for whom it was intended and that was enough.

The day did not pass without the presence of the guiding spirit of the municipality. Mayor Phelan was there and he reviewed the drill companies in laction. During the noon hour lunch was served at the cottage by the executive committee, the guests of whood of Stanford.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 1.—Katle Lottus, a girl 14 years old, was burned to death at the residence of her parents at Tenth avenue and East First street yesterday afternoon. Her clothing caught fire while she was preparing supper and she inhaled the flames. The girl was alone in the house when the accident occurred. It is supposed that she threw oil on the fire in the kitchen stove.

straying beyond the immediate reach of their parents the cottage was selected as the meeting place. All afternoon weeping and frightened children were brought to the headquarters, where they needed little or no identification, as the mother usually found the place before the child.

Promptly at 3 o'clock the strains of Professer Roncovier's band were heard in a new march by the leader entitled "Bohemian Life." For an hour the band played patriotic airs. At 16 o'clock Mayor Phelan, the Board of Education, Mrs. Mary Kincaid, James Denman, R. H. Webster, president of the day; W. N. Bush, director of exercises; Colonel C. H. Murphy, grand marshal, and John Casserly, took their stations in the receiving stand and the exercises by the children were inaugurated. The programme was:

PICNICKING RAILROAD MEN SUFFERED DELAYS

Despite the ill fortune which pursued them all day, the Railway Employes' Association of California had an enjoyable cuting yesterday at Sunset Park, Santa Cruz Mountains. It was their annual pienic, Fate seemed to delay the men. The ferry-boat laden with excursionists left the depot at 10 o'clock, and on arriving at the Alameda mole was compelled to wait outside for nearly twenty minutes untit the boat in the slip pulled out. No further incidents occurred until the homeward journey. When a short distance outside of San Jose the long train was brought to a sudden stop, and had to wait two hours until tornup track could be replaced. The train which preceded the railroaders had run into a switch and played havoc with the readbed. A wrecking crew was called into service, and after repair, had been made the belated picnickers continued their journey to the city. Despite the ill fortune which pursued
